Many thought he had withdrawn from the race, but his friends called a meeting that night and the action of the police was denounced.

"The next morning," continued Mr. Kempner, "I went out myself, and right around the corner in Fifth street, near where I live, I saw two ward detectives in citizen's clothes coming out of a barber shop. They were Detectives Hopp and Mallon. At the same time I noticed the proprietor with my lithograph in his hand.

"I asked him what he was going to do with it, and he said the policeman had ordered him to take it down. I followed the two detectives, and saw them go into Tollmeyer's grocery store, at 405 Fifth street.

Mr. Kempner stated that he had distributed about 1.500 lithographs.
"Why did you distribute these lithographs yourself?" asked Mr. Nicoll.
"Oh, it is the custom. I believe. I think I have seen the handsome features of the District-Attorney in lithographs."
This caused some merriment among the auditors, and Mr. Nicoll blushed.
Mr. Kempner admitted that he usually made things hot for his opponents when he ran as a candidate, and that he had formerly ran as a candidate in that district. "You made things hot for the Republi-"I tried to."

"I tried to."

"And now you are making things hot for Tammany Hall?"

"That's about the size of it."

Objections were made by Mr. Sutherland to some of Mr. Nicoli's questions, but the latter said he was only trying to show the witness's political blas. They were ruled out.

William Hopf, who has a wine shop at 435 Sixth street, was the next witness. Mr. Kempner said the witness could not speak English very well and he offered to act as interperter.

Hopf said he had lived in the district for twenty years, and had known Mr. Kempner for about five years.

About eight days before election Mr. I Kempner's lithograph was put up in his window. On the Friday before a detective came in and ordered him to take it down and tear it up.

The witness said he refused to do this at first, but the detective said to him:

"I' took the lithograph of Mr. Kempner.

"I took the lithograph of Mr. Kempher out of the window and put it up inside the store. There were six other lithographs of candidates in the win-

"How did the officer act?"
"He was very threatening in his manner."
On cross-examination Mr. Hopf said he was not a supporter of Mr. Kempner in his canvass, and did not even vote for him. He did not know him personally, but just by reputation. He put up lithographs of all the candidates because it was the custom street, a captain for Kempiner in the Second Election District of the Seventh Assembly District, was then called to the stand.

He said that Frank Kelly, the Tammany captain in that district, brought in a lot of men whom the witness believed to be repeaters, and who were challenged, but the protests of the Hepublican inspectors were not allowed.

"About two o'clock in the afternoon," said the witness, "one of the Tammany inspectors came up to Kelly and said, "Kempiner is getting the best of it." "Kelly swore considerably and went out. He came back shortly with a flock of voters. He brought them in one by one to vote, but I challenged them. They were not allowed to vote.

"Kelly was very angry, and said to me and the Republican inspector: "I'll fix you. I was appointed by Commissioner Martin, and I don't take any orders from you."

The witness also swore that the posters of Mr. Kempiner was removed from nearity all the stores in the district by order of the police.

"Did you complain to the police offier present about Kelly," asked Mr. Nicoli.
"Yes."

"And he told Kelly to keep gulet?"

"And he told Kelly to keep quiet?" And Kelly did bother you after that?"

"No."
"That's ali."
Senator Cantor came in during this dineases testimony and asked him a ew questions after Mr. Nicoli had finished. Mergler said he had volunteered is testimony to-day and he had not told its story to any one before to-day.
